Purpose

When the Ottawa Central Ambulance Communications Centre designed a command-and-control center to maximize AV technology and to provide situational awareness, redundancy, and on-the-job training, they relied on TOA products.

Challenge

Design a command-and-control centre that maximizes AV technology to provide situational awareness, redundancy, and on-the-job training. The facility was built in the 1990s and lacked the infrastructure to support new technologies.

Solution

Working with the integrator a full facility solution was design which focused on visual communications and sound clarity. For the speaker aspect of the project TOA's F-2352C ceiling speakers along with F-1300 box speakers all ran through TOA's M-9000 Matrix mixer amplifier.

Feedback

Management was satisfied with the installation job and the resulting communication abilities of the ambulance centre. The different product brands were all integrated perfectly and worked great.
